The Urban Planning and Design Committee of the American Institute of Architects has been sending Urban Design Assistance Teams to various American cities since 1967.

The San Francisco South of Market Team is the 78th such team to be invited into a specific area to deal with environmental and urban problems which range in scale from large cities and regions to small towns, and in type from recreational areas to public policy and implementational methods. The teams respond to the problems as described by the community leadership.

Each Regional/Urban Design Assistance Team is specially selected to include professionals experienced in the particular problems of the area under study. Members are not compensated for their service and agree not to accept commissions for work resulting from their recommendations.

The team acquaints itself with the community and its people; presents its analysis from a fresh perspective; and offers its recommendations.
