

Reproducing AIA Documents: Rights and Restrictions

Excerpted from The Architect's Handbook of Professional Practice, 13th edition

Revised January 2007

---

The AIA collects and disseminates Best Practices as a service to AIA members without endorsement or recommendation. Appropriate use of the information provided is the responsibility of the reader.

---

SUMMARY

Most of the AIA Contract Documents are intended to be used as “consumables,” that is, the original document purchased by the user is intended to be consumed in the course of its use. The AIA holds the copyright to these documents. There is no implied right or permission to reproduce the documents in their original form, nor does AIA membership confer any right to copy the documents.

The AIA grants to purchasers of AIA Contract Documents four types of limited licenses to reproduce the copyrighted documents: license-to-purchaser (entire document), license-to-purchaser (excerpted document), license-to-subscriber (electronic documents), and the written license.

LICENSE-TO-PURCHASER

Entire document

This limited license is granted to purchasers of most AIA documents that contain blank spaces for the user to complete for a specific project. After filling in the blanks, the user may make up to 10 copies of the completed document for a specific project. The purchaser can find the written notice of this license on the instruction sheet or the inside front cover of the document.

Where applicable, the license is automatically granted upon purchase of the document but does not take effect until the blank spaces are completed with all of the information for a specific project, excluding signatures. This license does not permit the user to reproduce the AIA documents without the blanks filled in or by retyping the documents, either in whole or in part.

Excerpted document

This license is granted to purchasers of documents in model form—such as AIA Document A511™—1999, Guide to Supplementary Conditions—with the intent that purchasers select language from the model form to include in their project manuals. The license is limited to the recommended language and not to the explanatory language that accompanies it.

Because the number of project manuals that may be produced for a given project may vary, there is no limit on the number of copies that may be made. Reproduction, however, must be for a specific project and not for general office use or information.

Neither of the license-to-purchaser licenses applies to the AIA General Conditions or Instructions to Bidders documents. Only originals of these documents may be used unless the AIA grants specific written permission to reproduce them.

LICENSE-TO-SUBSCRIBER

The AIA grants this license to subscribers to the AIA Contract Documents Electronic Format software. For a fixed annual fee, users of the software are permitted to copy the AIA documents for their business use but not for commercial resale.

WRITTEN LICENSE

Under certain circumstances, the AIA may grant a specific license to reproduce AIA documents. For example, users cannot post either a draft document or completed document on a Web site for use on a specific project without a separate written license from the AIA.

Users can request such licenses by sending e-mail to copyright@aia.org or by calling the AIA General Counsel's Office at 202-626-7348.

Users may post documents generated from AIA Contract Documents software to a password-protected intranet or extranet Web site without obtaining a separate written license from the AIA only under the terms of the End User License Agreement. Such posting cannot be for any commercial purpose, such as for bidding or negotiation of construction projects or for marketing or promotion of projects or services.

RESOURCES

More Best Practices

The following AIA Best Practices provide additional information related to this topic:

- 17.01.01 Reviewing Owner-Supplied Agreements
- 17.01.02 Watch Your Language: Absolute Compliance
- 18.01.01 AIA A201-1997: Refinement of an Important Contract Document

For More Information on This Topic

See “The AIA Documents,” by Dale R. Ellickson, Esq., FAIA, The Architect’s Handbook of Professional Practice, 13th edition, Chapter 11, page 308.

See also the 14th edition of the Handbook, which can be ordered from the AIA Bookstore by calling 800-242-3837 (option 4) or by email at bookstore@aia.org.

Feedback

The AIA welcomes member feedback on Best Practice articles. To provide feedback on this article, please contact: bestpractices@aia.org.

Keywords

- Practice
- Project administration
- Project agreements
- Design services contracts