Thomas Jefferson Awards for Public Architecture

The American Institute of Architects established the Thomas Jefferson Awards for Public Architecture to recognize achievements in the following three categories:

Category One:

Private-sector architects who have established a portfolio of accomplishment in the design of architecturally distinguished public facilities.

Thomas Jefferson demonstrated a commitment to excellence in architecture in order to improve the public's understanding of its own potential through various models of quality design. He pursued a more sensitive and responsible government as well as enhanced standards of living and learning for the general public. The product of good public buildings, such as post offices, recreation centers, libraries, educational facilities, and infrastructure projects that impact a broad cross-section of a community structure, must be recognized for the significance of their lasting contribution to our enhanced quality of life.

Eligibility

The candidate is an architect licensed in the United States and practicing in the private sector.

The candidate has made a significant contribution to the quality of public architecture and has established a portfolio of accomplishment to that end. The candidate has also shown evidence of great depth, and has had a cumulative effect on the quality of public architecture.

Category Two:

Public-sector architects who manage or produce quality design within their agencies.

The category recognizes achievements of those public sector architects who, by their skill, professionalism, dedication, ability, and commitment, have consistently fostered quality in the public built environment and such quality is uniquely attributed to each recipient.

Eligibility

The candidate is an architect licensed in the U.S. and employed in the United States public sector or with a government agency and manages or produces quality public architecture within his or her jurisdiction.

OR Key:
 = Section Complete
 = Section Incomplete

The candidate is itself a governmental agency and who, by its successful contribution as a whole, has fostered quality in the public environment.

Category Three:

Public officials or other individuals who by their role of advocacy have furthered the public's awareness and/or appreciation of design excellence

This category recognizes the critical role of elected officials, public administrators, and institutional leaders who establish or contribute to the development of laws, regulations, policies, etc. that effect the process and product of architecture as well as the public's perception of such architecture as an important part of our environment, lives, and heritage.

Of particular importance is recognition of their advocacy for design excellence as a critical issue in the formulation of such policies and the positive evolution of the public's perception and demand for design quality.

Eligibility

The candidate is a public official or individual who by his or her role and advocacy have furthered the public's awareness and/or appreciation of design excellence in public architecture.

OR

The candidate may be a nonarchitect who by his or her support and actions has significantly influenced or contributed to the promotion of quality design in the public sector.
